PHASES OF THE CAMPAIGN.

THE "BOYS" ARE DISGRUNTLED.

RICHARD GROKER'S PURCHASE OF ENGLISH HARNESS AND ADOPTION OF A CREST CALL FORTH MANY MUTTERINGS.

Mr. Croker's purchase of an elegant set of imported English-made harness for his gay turnout of spirited bays set the politicians of the city to making comments yesterday. Some of the most caustic reflections upon the "boss" came from hi own sub-leaders. Imported English harness of the most approved style comes high in New-York, but Mr. Croker had to have it. The price he paid was $900 for the set, but it was said that was nothing for a man of his resources.

According to the story, the "boss," having care fully inspected the harness and having ordered i sent to his stables, returned to his carriage, in front of the Fifth-avc. English agency, and his liveried footman had deftly tucked the luxurious wraps about him when the ruler of New-York remembered that he had forgotten something. He hastily got out again, and returned to the salesroom. The proprietor, all smiles and bows, rushed up to discover the cause of the great man's reappearance.

"I neglected to say," the "boss" explained, in a low tone, "that I want my family crest put on the harness," and he handed the obsequious individual before him the design of the Croker coat-of-arms, "Certainly, certainly, Mr. Croker," replied the man, continuing to make obetsances until the "boss" again disappeared in his handsome equip-

When he was gone the harness-seller examined the crest and grinned. If he expected to see a beautiful yellow tiger couchant, or a green flag with a golden harp, or a shamrock, or a miniature of Tammany Hail, he was disappointed. The design Mr. Croker had handed him was a savage, hungry-looking lion rampant—a bold, bad, dangerous beast, with flerce eyes and a protruding tongue.

"Shade of the immortal Burke!" he exclaimed. "But it goes,"

"Shade of the immortal Burke;" he exclaimed. "But it goes."
Some of the Tammany leaders think that if Mr. Croker was bent on having imported English harness for his high-steppers he might have waited until after the election to buy them.

"This thing hurts us in the lower districts," said a Tammany man, who landed from Ireland a quarter of a century ago, "more than might be supposed. The spectacle of Richard Croker aping English dudes I never expected to see in my lifetime. Don't it beat h—ll?"

Another part of the harness story was that Mr. Croker, before deciding upon the style anylously.

it beat h—11?"
Another part of the harness story was that Mr. Croker, before deciding upon the style, anxiously inquired if it was the same kind of harness that President Cleveland purchased last spring, and upon being informed that it was, said that it would suit him, and immediately gave the order. This deference to Mr. Cleveland's tastes, some Wigwam men shought yesterday, ought to have its effect when the President came to give out the rest of the offices. others were not disposed to take such a

But others were not disposed to take such a gingerly view.

"It may be all well enough for Cleveland to affect English tastes and copy after the lords and dukes of effete Europe," remarked a disgusted worker of "Paddy" Divver's district, "but think of 'Dick' Croker, the head of an organization whose cornerstone is dislike of the English and their namby-pamby ways, following in the wake of the snobs and 'Cholly' Knickerbockers of this town is enough to drive decent, sensible people away from Manhattan Island. It won't take many months of such work to make some serious political changes in New-York."

MR. HORR'S PREDICTION VERIFIED. A PROPHECY OF IDLE MILLS IN MONTGOMERY

when the Presidential campaign was in full blast and speakers were thick throughout this section dressed a gathering of glovemakers in the opera makers that they, of all workmen, should vote for protection to their industry, and he made the prediction that if Cleveland was elected one-half prediction that if Cleveland was elected one-half the mills in Gloversville would be closed down in less than six months, and that the streets would be filled with idle workingmen and girls. In the audience was one of the leading glove manufacturers of this section, Daniel B. Judson, of Kingsboro', a Democrat and a Cleveland man. A few evenings laier there was a Democratic demonstration, and Mr. Judson asked that he might be one of the speakers. When it came to his time to speak there was a great hurrah, and the Free Traders yelled themselves almost hoarse at a glove manufacturer who was with them. Mr. Judson referred to Mr. Horr's address, and in the course of his remarks repeated the prediction that in less than six months of Mr. Cleveland's election one-half of the mills would be closed down. He told the workingmen that this statement was the "merest rot," that it was a political lie, and he solemnly promised the glovemakers of Fulton County "that if any of them lost their jobs through Cleveland's election he would give them work at his glove factory in Kingsboro."

Mr. Horr's prediction has turned out more than true. Every glove factory in this county has been closed several months, and the Judson factory with the rest. Mr. Judson is in a humiliating position. Hardly a child passes him who does not shout: "There goes Daniel Judson! He'll give you work." It is stated as a fact that he has on his books applications for employment of 12,000 people. He went to Washington during the tariff hearings to endeavor to persuade the Ways and Means Committee not to do what he voted that they should do, and is the most penitent man in all this region. the mills in Gloversville would be closed down in they should do, and is the most penitent man in all this region.

James Shanahan, Cleveland's chief partisan in Montgomery County, has been elected president of the Fonda, Johnstown and Gloversville Railroad since last fall, and his interests now depend on the industrial prosperity of this locality, and he, too, has changed from a moderate Free Trader to a strong Protectionist—on gloves.

MR. SCHWICK A CANDIDATE IN GOOD FAITH of the VIIth Assembly District, called at The Trib-une office yesterday to protest against the charges that Charles Schwick, nominated by the Republicans in that district for Assembly was not running in good faith. They declared that he was a good Republican, that he was opposed to Tammany Hall, and that he had no alliance with that organi Mr. Schwick also defended his Republicanism, and denied the charges. The committee also signed this statement for publication:

We, the undersigned members of the Republican rganization of the VIIth Assembly District, do areby challenge in open debate any Republican or bidy r Republicans in any Assembly district of the county of New-York, or any other person who doubts the good

TION UNTIL AFTER THE ELECTION. Columbus, Oct. 28 (Special).-The signs of victory for the Republicans have worked the Democratic managers here into a state of desperation Following the exposure of the organized effort to foist upon the voters a system for the distribution of fraudulent ballots comes evidence to establish the claim that the National Pension Bareau has been turned into a political machine to aid in the fight against McKinley and protection. W. A. Taylor, the Democratic candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, is repeating in his speeches a story to the effect that General Mitchell, United States Pension Agent in Ohio, stated the number of pensioners sus effect that General Mitchell, United States Pension Agent in Ohio, stated the number of pensioners suspended in Ohio during August at sixteen. This statement has been placed in the form of a letter and printed in all the Democratic papers. To-night General Mitchell, in a letter over his signature, brands the statement of Taylor as false, and explains that he did not make public the number of suspensions because he received orders from Commissioner Lechren to suppress this information. Over 1.890 were suspended prior to August, but the number since that date will not be known until after the election.

The Acting Commissioner of Pensions, D. I. Murphy, has apparently taken charge of the bureau annex to the party. He is operating from Washington and is credited with having boasted that he would make the National Soldiers' Home at Dayton show a Democratic majority. Murphy is coming to Ohio next week to "work" the inmates of the Home, and as the preliminary step has sent letters to a number of suspended pensioners advising them that the agent at Columbus has been ordered to resume their payment. The letter, however, advised the "suspect" that he must report for medical examination, as previously ordered. Thus, it is shown that the restoration of payment is only temporary, perhaps until after the election. The pretended restorations are being made on the order of Senator Brice, and without examination.

SECRETARY LAMONT HERE A FEW HOURS Secretary Daniel S. Lamont arrived in this city late Friday evening and went away again yesterday afternoon. He seems to believe that the best campaign in politics, as well as in love and war, is one that is short, sharp and decisive. He rushes from Washington to this city, stays a few hours and, presto! he is gone back to the capital city. He went to Washington yesterday on the 3:30 p. m. train over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.
